ENHAR Newsletter

Issue 2

Dear Demian,

Welcome to our second newsletter!

The Australian federal government is currently designing and consulting on major programs which have the potential to secure a long term future for the sustainable energy sector.

Expanded National Renewable Energy Target Scheme; Since our last newsletter, we have made a submission to the Department of Climate Change on the exciting expanded MRET, on how to deliver the 20% renewable power target. You can read our full submission on our website by clicking here. Now we look forward to the resultant legislation materialising!

Australian Emissions Trading grabbed plenty of headlines following the Garnaut Review publication and the Governments subsequent Green Paper. Prizes go to anyone who has read the entirety of both massive documents, we certainly haven't had the time! Having familiarised ourselves with what is essentially a strong proposed scheme, we trust the national debate will result in something which delivers on major emissions reductions. This is an unprecedented time of opportunity for our industry and the prospects of renewable energy and energy conservation becoming main-stream in Australia have never been better. Our positive response to these development contrasts with reactions from industries who, destined to pay for their greenhouse gas emissions under the scheme, paint it as a negative prospect for the economy. Dissapointingly, the clean energy industry has not enjoyed as much air time as traditional lobbies in recent press. Let us hope that the positive message, that low carbon future means prosperity, will also emerge.

In Services, we are complimenting our core services in Renewable Energy and Energy Conservation, with new Carbon Management and Carbon Accounting services.

In Events, we welcome you to join us for an informal drink and networking session today around 'beer-o'clock'. Come along to wind down at the end of the week and meet others with an interest in Sustainable Energy. Join us from 4:30pm til 7pm, today Friday 22nd August, at 420 Victoria Street, Brunswick, for informal networking. A map and directions to the event are on our 'contact' page.

Our next Seminar will take place on Friday 19th September from 4:30pm, also in Brunswick. The event is free, all with an interest are welcome to attend. Why not mark it in your diary, invite your colleagues and your contacts with an interest in Sustainable Energy to come along with you. Light refreshments and drinks will be served. Please register your interest in attending this Seminar by emailing info@enhar.com.au

Thank you for continuing to be part of our network.

Sincerely yours,

Demian at Enhar
